

What is included?

Below you will find compressed tar archives of ZTF event alerts (observations detected in image differences). Each tar file contains alerts collected in the given night (UTC-based), with each alert stored in a separate file in the AVRO format. To get you started, we offer a repository with few basic utilities for reading AVRO-serialized data, as well as an example Jupyter notebook. The schema fields are described here.

Why this service?

We are providing this archive as simple alternative to public event brokers. Full-featured event brokers that provide real-time access to these alerts include MARS, Lasair, ANTARES, and ALeRCE.

Known caveats

- The data provided on this site is generated automatically. The files provided contain a full, unfiltered, 5-sigma alert stream. Depending on your science case, you may wish to improve the purity of your sample by filtering the data on the included attributes such as the signal-to-noise ratio or the real-bogus score.
- Users interested in un-subtracted archival photometry should consider the ZTF Data Releases, accessible at IRSA.
- A subset of events obtained through Caltech time are made public here in "programid3" tarballs; as of this writing these are additional observations of the current TESS sector.
